Prince Street Gallery is pleased to announce Light as Narrator, a solo exhibition of new paintings by guest artist Lance Paull. The exhibition will be on view from June 16 through July 4, 2026, with an opening reception on Thursday, June 18, from 5 - 8pm.

In this latest body of work, Paull moves beyond the mere application of light, allowing it to take center stage as a protagonist. Through a series of large-scale acrylic and mixed-media works, he explores the tension where dramatic light breaks through moody landscapes and allegorical scenes.

From the mythic Prometheus to the surreal Deflated, these works invite the viewer into spaces that are both atmospheric and intellectually provocative. Paull's work blurs the line between ordinary life and something much larger or more significant. By placing classical drama into modern settings, he captures the universal humanity hidden behind the spectacle

About the Artist: Lance Paull is known for his cinematic approach to figurative painting. His work frequently explores themes of theater, allegory, and the "behind the curtain" lives of his subjects. He lives and works in Glen Rock, NJ.
